THE WORM IS TURNING IN PISCATAWAY

Individual gratitude at public expense. The wideawake taxpayer is well aware that when certain people have revealed to them their divine right to be maintained from the income derived from taxpayers' purses, such people very soon feel called upon to find some excuse for recommending the doing of something for which the taxpayer must provide necessary funds. It follows, also, most naturally that because of the wisdom and foresight shown by a person of this class in discovering some new way of adding to the taxpayers' burden, a liberal appropriation ought to be made for his disbursement.

To taxpayers these proceedings are less attractive than to the genius who invents or fathers them. The dollars contributed to the public treasury represent too much toil and self-denial to be freely available for reckless expenditures. While nothing could be easier for a member of the Legislature or other governing bodies delegated powers of determining public expenditures than to vote away a few hundred, thousand, or hundred thousand dollars of the taxpayers' hard-earned money, he finds the situation less to his liking when the taxpayer begins to question the advantages accruing to him through the election to office of men so liberally inclined.

From the taxpayers' viewpoint there is little sympathy with the prevalent idea that when the State treasury is already sufficiently depleted it is a commendable act to place on our counties, townships, cities or other municipalities burdens often too heavy for the whole State to carry.

In cases where appropriation of public funds involves transactions showing a surface a little raw, the taxpayer is not readily appeased by the mere covering of such disbursements with a cloak of conservation or reform or humanitarianism or by pleas of public necessities. Where public funds available to meet public expenditures prove insufficient, and the man in office the remedy seems so simple through the mere increase of the funds before pursuing that policy it is well our taxing boards should realize that if their employment is entirely congenial they will act very wisely if they help to limit the burden the taxpayer is asked to bear.

In the unexpected action which the taxpayers of Piscataway Township have taken evidencing their intention to limit the expenditures of the public funds for which the taxpayer provides the money, we are reminded of the man who insisted that he never resented being stepped upon, but always felt considerably embarrassed to observe the rough walking which overlooked the man who did the stepping.

WHITMAN LIKELY TO ACCEPT.

Miller For Borough President to Make Way For Republican.

New York, Aug. 7.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman will issue a statement announcing his decision in regard to the fusion nomination for district attorney. Almost beyond question he will accept that nomination. Only courtesy and a desire to hear some prominent members of his party prevented him issuing a statement last night.

"I think I have waited long enough," said Mr. Whitman at his home, 37 Madison avenue. "I will issue a statement of my position today. I cannot say at what time it will be issued. I trust and have reason to believe that the very complex situation that has confronted us will be cleared up by then."

Further than this Mr. Whitman would not go. He had spent another trying day listening to arguments against his taking the nomination. He had been threatened, caajoled, pleaded with. Save for an hour or two at his office attending to the duties of the district attorney, he spent all day and last evening conferring with political clams.

As a result of Mr. Whitman's expected declaration and of the deliberations and conferences at least one change will almost certainly be made in the ticket as nominated by the fusionists. Cyrus C. Miller, nominee for borough president of the Bronx, is likely to retire in favor of Thomas W. Whittle. Mr. Miller is a Democrat. Mr. Whittle a Republican.

produced the unexpected effect of a wakeful activity on the part of overburdened taxpayers heretofore classed as capable of nothing more disturbing than slumbering resentment.

For too many years it has been thought that a man should not be permitted through self-denial and hardship to accumulate property for any purpose other than to afford a readily accessible source of public revenue. It has been held that if a man were foolish enough to work he was not supposed to be possessed of sufficient intelligence to know how to enjoy his accumulated savings. It followed naturally that it should be deemed a public duty to encourage any man willing to sacrifice himself to the patriotic task of squandering in the pursuit of enjoyment of political sinecures the hard-earned dollars of such mere taxpayers.

Where a law-abiding citizen happens to be the owner of a farm he is favored with enactments by the Legislature which for all practical purposes without compensation to him and without his assent make the acres of land upon which his taxes are assessed part of a State game preserve, subject not only to the burdens of a closed season during which the sportsman's game grows fat with high living on the farmer's crops and the trapper's skunks and like vermin are made ideal assets under protective legislation entitling them to immunity in the enjoyment of the farmer's chickens and eggs, but subject likewise during the open season to the burden of trespasses by people whose ignorance or selfishness allows them to assume that by purchase of a gunner's license they are endowed with proprietary rights in the farmer's land.

The holder of a people who on the law thus turns loose on property on the income of which the farmer depends for his living, after first providing for payment of taxes, are rarely embarrassed by warnings or obstructions. Where fences are in the way they are leveled with little regard for resulting consequences, and where crops are growing they are trampled and destroyed to what ever extent may serve the convenience and pleasure of everybody excepting the man who pays the taxes assessed upon the land. There is also a further incidental advantage accompanying the issue of a gunner's license. It gives the holder a feeling that he is a sportsman and not a thief if he bags stray chickens and other domestic fowl.

It should cause little surprise that long-suffering taxpayers ever ready to contribute liberally in taxes for very restricted governmental advantages have finally refused to carry the additional burden of a last straw when again confronted with the assurance that their assessments will be increased to provide additional funds to cover the margin again in evidence between available income and necessary public expenditures. They demand the crisis be met by curtailing the expenditures and not by increasing the taxpayers' burden.

After waiting many years to realize the relief promised through the machinery of taxing boards and boards to equalize taxes, the patient taxpayer at last realizes that the real mission of such bodies is to make the taxpayer contribute more and always more in taxes. It should not be forgotten that rural tastes are too closely allied with simplicity to make possible any real appreciation on the part of taxpayers even of such luxuries as governing bodies created to make government more effective and ornamental.

There is no evidence that the average taxpayer is at all unwilling to be deprived of many of the advantages which have been heaped upon him through the endless creation of Boards for Something and Commissions to Report, which provide the money somebody needs, but from the taxpayers' standpoint produce ultimately neither economy nor advantage, falling always in the only object that could justify their existence, the making lighter the taxpayer's burden and more liveable the existence of the man through whose efforts something is produced.

Under rural ideas there is still respect for the old-fashioned notion that it savors of honor to live within one's income; that generally speaking the only condition which makes good citizenship possible is the ability of the individual citizen to create a margin in the excess of his income, and that the example set by their fathers and grandfathers should lead them to pursue this habit to the extent of dispensing with a luxury, or even a necessity, where they are unable to pay its price.

With such training it is most natural that taxpayers should tire of the persistent creation of new offices, the real purpose of which is to provide a livelihood for other office-holders' friends, and likewise the reciprocating movements for increase of salaries through which those favored and hoping for favors express

Eureka Fire Committee's Funny Experience.

The committee recently appointed by Eureka Fire Co., No. 1 to look into the matter of holding their annual clam bake at Seidler's Beach had quite an exciting time when on their way home in automobiles. The fun began when the party were passing through South River and discovered one of the cars missing, it being that owned by Martin Mueller, the local butcher. The entire party immediately started in search but it was a long while before any trace could be found, some thinking Mueller and his party may have been kidnapped or wandered away on the wrong road. The missing auto was finally located at South Amboy where Mueller was busily engaged in repairing a blow out and the rest of the party acted as supervisors.

The party was soon overcome and the party were on their way home without any further mishaps until they reached Sayreville when Mueller, the unfortunate driver, again caused a halt this time due to the lack of gasoline. The supply of gas, however, was soon replenished and the clam bake committee went on their homeward journey.

Among those in the party were Mayor Conrad Richter, Martin Mueller, Charles Richter, Elwood Boles, William Kuhlthau, Milton Bridwell, J. V. L. Booream, George Heyl, Edward Emmens, Addison Thompson, C. W. Waddington, John Bauries, John Decker.
