w sidewalk on the College avenue de of the old ball grounds and this s continued over the Ray street ossing. Today's petition also asks at crosswalks be laid at Morrell d College avenue and at Senior reet and College avenue.

The principal objection of the th Ward residents was made the sidewalg at the Ray street ossing. At the last meeting was declared that an attempt had en made by Rutgers College to se up the street, and those who s this morning said the crossing now constructed gives every ap- arance of the street being closed.

Among the signers of the petition re Peter F. Kinney, William R. e, Fred B. Kilmer, Theodore Whit- k, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kalteissen, mes J. Crosson, William Rastall, seph H. Ridgeway, and A. Wayne ark.

This petition was referred to Com- ssoner Oliver's department and r Mr. Lee was given the priv- e of the floor. He said that if ds for constructing a new cross k at that point were not available, was authorized to say that the res- nts would pay for the work and e it to the direction of the com- ssoners. Mr. Lee was content that mmissioner Oliver be given a week make a report on the matter. gene Gilligan and Lawrence How- , however, thought that some ac- should be taken at once. They said ey were tired of attending the mmission meetings to voice their otest.

During the discussion, Commis- ner Oliver said:

"I am responsible of that side- lk being there, and not Rutgers llege. I asked them to do it, e- ving it was an improvement to the ighborhood. There was no ught of closing Ray street. You ow how I stood on the matter en I was a member of Common uncil and when Rutgers asked for closing of that street," he added t he would be prepared to make a port at the next meeting and not fore.

PERSONALS

Announcements have been received in this city of the marriage of Mrs. Robert Wood Johnson, of this city and New York, to John William Dennis, of London, England, which was solemnized, as told in yesterday's Home News, at the New York home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Dennis are now enjoying a honeymoon in the south. They will be at home to their friends the fourth Wednesdays of this month and December, at 475 Park avenue, New York. In January they will sail for England to live.

Judge Frank I. Lloyd and wife, of Camden, were the guests over night, of ex-Judge Hicks, of Highland Park.

Free Quinn of Murder in Italy

one of the polling districts in Perth Amboy it is alleged some of the votes cast were piled upon the table upon which the ballot box stood and were never placed in the box. A heavy vote was polled in this district and it is said the ballot box was filled with ballots so that in the opinion of the election board it would hold no more. Then the votes as they were cast by the voter were piled up in a heap upon the table. Mr. Spencer claims these votes should have been forced into the box in some way, and that because of this alleged irregularity the vote in the entire district should be thrown out. It is contended the piling of votes upon the table provided an opportunity to any one who so desired to remove ballots therefrom.

In another polling district in Perth Amboy it is declared there were twenty-two ballots marked with a blue lead pencil. All of these votes were for Florance. Blue pencil marking is illegal. It is also contended that there are a large number of ballots on which there were votes as they were cast by the voters and that these ballots were thrown out altogether, when only the vote for freeholder should have been not counted, and all of the vote on the rest of the ticket counted.

Another ground for the recount is the claim that in several districts in this city ballots were found on which the name of a candidate for Justice of the Peace had been written in pencil, without having a cross put in the square opposite the name. Such ballots have been ruled by the Supreme Court to be void, but in these polls they were counted.

The charge is also made that money was used in several districts for the purchase of votes, $10 a vote being paid in some places.

The law provides that the petitioners for a recount must file a bond guaranteeing the expense of the proceedings, and in case the result of the election remains unchanged after the recount the cost must all be borne by the petitioners, while if the recount changes the result the county bears the expense.

It has been roughly estimated that to count the entire lot of ballots cast in Tuesday's race for Sate Senator, and to pay the lawyers who must be engaged in the contest, will entail an outlay of not less than $2,000. Each member of the county election board, of whom there are four, receives $10 for each day the board meets.

Republicans, aside from the Spencer partisans, are arguing against a recount on the ground that if any considerable number of ballots are thrown out it may result in counting out George S. Applegate and William S. Dey, Republican candidates who were elected to the Assembly and the Board of Freeholders respectively.

EXEMPTS ARE URGED TO ATTEND MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association, will be held at their headquarters tonight at 8 o'clock and a full attendence of the members is requested as several matters of importance are to be discussed, including a very important letter bearing on the Exempts.

AT THE BIJOU

"The Wild Olive," from the novel by Basil King, dramatized by Oliver Morosco and Elmer Harris. The cast:

Miriam Strange, "The Wild Olive," ..... Myrtle Stedman
Norrie Ford .....Forrest Stanley
Evie Wayne .....Mary Ruby
Judge Wayne .....Charles Marriott
Charles Conquest .....Edmund Lowe

On the circumstantial evidence of the bloody dagger having been found in his bedroom, young Norrie Ford is indicted on the terrible charge of murdering his uncle, a boss and bully in an Alleghany lumber camp, and is sentenced to death.

Breaking away from his guards, Norrie escapes into the mountains where he is hidden from the pursuing posse in the cabin of a mysterious mountain girl of beauty and culture, who aids him to make his escape to Argentine, after they have vowed their love for each other.

Growing a beard and changing his name, Norrie Ford soon become a favorite in the best circles of gay Buenos Ayres. Sending letter after letter to the mountain girl, whom he knows only as "The Wild Olive," the letters are all returned marked "No Such Name." In his endeavors to forget her he becomes engaged to a New York girl and shortly after is transferred to New York by his firm. Venturing back to the States he finds "The Wild Olive" again, only to learn that she is the girl chum of his betrothed.

Meanwhile he has been seen by a detective who was one of the deputies during his trial for murder. The clash between Norrie's fiancee and "The Wild Olive," and the latter's noble sacrifice not only to the fiancee but also to an attorney suitor on condition that he clear Norrie of the murder charge, culminate in a dramatic courtroom scene where the identity of the real murderer is discovered and Norrie is acquitted.

Other good pictures.

Want All Senate Votes Recounted

R. Ferguson. The prosecutor at that time was George S. Silzer and nothing was left undone to bring about the arrest of Quinn, but efforts to have him sent back here for trial failed utterly.

Sworn affidavits, however, were forwarded to Italy by Mr. Silzer and later by Prosecutor Florance, including the testimony of two eye-witnesses to the tragedy, both of whom fastened the crime upon Quinn. It was generally felt that the case against the prisoner was of the strongest, hence the action of the Italian Court is all the more surprising.

Mrs. Kuberry was a general favorite and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Litkenhaus, of this city. She was employed at the plant of the Michelin Tire Company, in front of whose property the shooting took place. Quinn had also been an employee of the tire works and had paid attention to Mrs. Kuberry, who repulsed him. It was believed that jealousy led to the shooting.

Charles Rick, a Syrian, who saw the murder of Mrs. Kuberry and tried to prevent Quinn's escape, was shot in the neck and was a patient in a local hospital for some time after the killing. His testimony was among the affidavits sent to Italy and several photographs of the scene of the crime had also been forwarded.

The letter just received by Prosecutor Florance was forwarded from the office of Governor Fielder, by whom it was received from the State Department at Washington. It bore date of September 22 and set forth that Quinn's trial took place on July 9 last.

A remarkable feature of the communication was the statement that the Quinn case is the fifth case within the past twelve months in which Italians, tried in Italian courts for murders alleged to have been committed in the United States, have been found not guilty by the jury and set at liberty by the courts. Not a case has been reported to the American Embassy within the past year in which a conviction for murder or manslaughter has been secured by the Royal Prosecutor.

The treaty laws between the United States and Italy are such that it is impossible for this country to secure the extradition of men arrested in Italy for murders committed in the United States, and the disadvantage resulting to the interests of justice seem to be amply set forth in the communication referred to above.
