LIQUOR SALES AT MILLTOWN HIT BY COMMERCE BOARD

address of the evening in presenting the business side of the Board of Education to those present, pointing out that the larger attendance, higher cost of text books, higher salaries paid teachers, etc., of today have a great bearing on the great expense that is attached to our school today, especially calling attention to the transportation of our children which alone runs up as big as four thousand dollars in the course of a year. Mr. DeHart urged the hearty co-operation of the folks of the town, to insure proper training of the children.

Dr. S. F. Weston, supervising principal of the school, was the next speaker of the evening on the Relation of School to Education, what education does toward making for a safer democracy and also how the social and recreational education of a child tends to develop that child into the higher and better methods of life. Dr. Weston dwelt upon the opportunities afforded today to the man or woman who has been properly prepared for life by means of an education.

The fact was brought out as to following out the methods of instruction as laid down by the State and that the local school is complying with all requirements of the State body with exception of the fact that there is no domestic science department at this time. The reason being given that up to this time there has not been sufficient room, and secondly, the Board of Education did not feel financially able to put on any more expense than they were absolutely compelled to at this time.

The fact was also brought out during the discussion that while a four room addition is being added to the present school structure it will not be many years before more room will be required. The Clerk stated in fact that it was not for the high cost of building materials and labor a new eight room school would have been asked for at this time instead of only a four room addition to the present building.

The second question on the calendar—Does Milltown get a fair share of fish and game in comparison with the licenses issued? Many of the sportsmen present did not think Milltown did get a fair share of game and upon the suggestion of those present a committee of three was appointed to make an investigation and report back to the Chamber at the next meeting, namely: Fish and Game Committee: Charles Zimmerman, Charles M. Sneider, Harold J. Schlosser.

The question of can Milltown have its own electrical inspector to insure safety service in Milltown was thoroughly discussed and the sentiment was that Milltown should have its own inspector.

Who knows the police signal system? This question was spoken upon by chairman of the police committee, Harold J. Schlosser, who explained that if anyone desired a policeman at any time to call the Michelin Tire Company and they would be sure to find one of the town officers there at any time during the day and any time in the evening up to 11.30 o'clock. It was pointed out that an arrangement had been made some years ago with the Telephone Company so that the telephone operator would know just what course to pursue. By mutual consent the matter was left in the hands of the borough council for their consideration.

After a discussion of the trolley service being given to Milltown at present, the following resolution was adopted:

No Fear Now of Indigestion

A Host of People Seem to Thrive on What Used to Provolve Indigestion Before They Learned of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

When the stomach becomes sour with gasiness and heartburn due to indigestion or dyspepsia relief may be had by one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Simply chew them, no hot water nor any other fillers for a stomach perhaps already too much overworked.

These tablets supply to the stomach the alkaline effect which is what relieves the sour acid condition. They also contain pancreatin to help digest the starchy foods such as potatoes, rice, oatmeal, white flour, etc.

Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, have them on hand at all times and thus have no fear of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The fact that these tablets are on sale everywhere in the U. S. and Canada shows how generally recognized they are as an efficient aid when the dyspeptic stomach needs a little help.—Adv.

James Neilson Host to Women Students

James Neilson was host last night to over 400 guests at an informal dance at his home, "Woodlawn." The guests were students of the New Jersey College for Women and their friends. Mr. Neilson was assisted in receiving by Dean Johnson's jazz orchestra furnished the most entrancing music during the evening and a most delicious collation was served.

The affair was one of the most charming and informal ever held at "Woodlawn" and the guests had the time of their lives with so delightful a host as Mr. Neilson.

This morning the New Jersey College for Women closed for the Thanksgiving holiday.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Fannie Hecht, who was the mother of Samuel Hecht of Metuchen, left an estate of about $1,000 in personal property when she died, intestate, October 17, last, according to her son, Joseph Hecht of No. 1186 East Nineteenth street, in his application for letters of administration upon the estate, which today stands granted to him by Surrogate George Albert Wingate.

Mrs. Hecht lived at No. 1186 East Nineteenth street and, because of her failure to leave a will, her two children, who are now only surviving heirs at law, are entitled to share equally in the estate.

It Does All We Claim or Costs You Nothing

A Gracious Lady

By ALVAH J. GARTH

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"A kindly, gracious lady, doubtless," observed Mrs. Carter Holmes lightly, "but I understand she has seen her day."

"Yes," nodded her visitor, Mrs. Varney. "They had money once and quite ruled the social destinies of Williston. Everything went in a bank crash and they have moved here to feel less the humiliation of their affairs."

"Of course she will have the wisdom and prudence not to break into our circle. Mrs. Wharton and her daughter Isola must be in a measure, shall we say, unsophisticated and crude."

"I think that about expresses it," nodded Mrs. Varney, and so these two active outposts of society dismissed the theme.

No notice would have been taken of Mrs. Eunice Marston if she had not been an old college friend of Mrs. Vera Repregle. The latter ruled society and her word was law in its operation. She had quietly told some chosen friends the history of the Whartons, and had given them to understand pretty well that she intended to quite recognize them and insist upon their doing so also.

Certainly when the Whartons first appeared in a public social way they could find no fault with the dignity, graciousness and refinement of Mrs. Wharton. As to the daughter Isola, those who were not fully charmed with her loveliness and pretty ways were lenient debutantes, or their scheming mothers, for young Harold Repregle manifestly was attracted toward her from the start.

"Oh, you needn't imagine that Mrs. Repregle is doing anything more than courteously showing attention to an old friend," insisted Mrs. Varney, who had a daughter on her hands. "This is obligatory and quite the thing to do. But, trust me, she will not see her son thrown away on a penniless girl like Isola Wharton."

There were frowns and shrugs, however, when at a second social function Mrs. Repregle made Isola quite the queen of the occasion.

Following this was a grand and exclusive occasion at a tea, where the cream of local society was supposed to be in evidence and invitations were not liberally given out. There was a good deal of secret longing for the distinction of "pouring" at the function, and the hopes of those ambitious ladies eager to push themselves forward were ardent and in evidence whenever two or more of the social set discussed the coming tea.

"Mrs. Repregle is so queer," commented Mrs. Carter Holmes. "She thinks more of giving some lonely, obscure person happiness than keeping strictly within ethical social lines, don't you think?"

"Yes, that is oftentimes her way," nodded Mrs. Varney. "If she followed out set social rules, I think you, Mrs. Holmes, should pour."

"Oh! I scarcely expect the honor," declared the lady addressed, while all the time she coveted the distinction more than any other honor Mrs. Repregle could confer upon her. There were others who had planned for the privilege.

It was a day of days for Mrs. Wharton when the occasion arrived. All the old tenderness of her friend Mrs. Repregle seemed to develop and enlarge as she greeted her. Mrs. Wharton was somewhat older than the majority of the guests who were mainly young married women. The contrast to their stylish attire in her plain black dress that had seen service, did not detract from the matronly graciousness of her nature which captivated all right thinkers in the little assembly.

"You will please pour, Mrs. Wharton," spoke Mrs. Repregle, and varied emotions were aroused by the announcement. Mrs. Holmes caught her breath hard. Mrs. Varney looked angry and sullen, others experienced the pangs of severe disappointment and envy.

It was not polly to reveal or retain these sentiments, however, and even those who were filled with spite suppressed any exhibition of the same. Like a courtly true gentleman of the past Mrs. Wharton spread kindly words and smiles, and with an irresistible grace and generous hospitality did her part well.

"Oh, well, it would have been more humiliating if our hostess had chosen Mrs. Daly," observed Mrs. Holmes.

"Or that forward Mrs. Doty," added Mrs. Varney. "It is simply an old lady humored and petted."

It had been the most gracious compliment Mrs. Repregle could have paid to an old and dear friend and Mrs. Wharton was deeply affected inwardly. It strengthened and sustained her social position and she was content and happy.

Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Varney seated near an open window, at the same time chanced to glance out into the garden. Both started and then exchanged meaningful looks.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily get pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole. Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister. Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). 35c and 65c jars; hospital size $3.00

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Senator Knox of Pennsylvania yesterday said he planned to reintroduce at the approaching session of congress his resolution to declare a separate peace with Germany. This plan would be followed despite the veto of a similar resolution by President Wilson.

Senator Knox said he did not expect passage of the resolution until after the special session of congress next spring after President Harding has been inaugurated. He said no one had any authority to express his views or those of Mr. Harding relative to cabinet appointments. Knox's name has been mentioned as the next secretary of state.
