

GIRLS ARE STILL LEADING BOYS IN SPELLING CONTEST

Six Girls Named Champions in City Schools; Only Five Boys HAVE BIG LEAD IN COUNTY CHAMPIONS

Milltown Champ

WILLARD LINDSTROM
Spelling Champion of Milltown School.

The girls are still leading the boys in the spelling bees sponsored by the Daily Home News and Sunday Times in the elementary schools of Middlesex and Somerset counties. Of the local schools, six girls and five boys are champions. The best speller in Roosevelt Junior High School, who is still to be named, may be a boy, and then the balance will be even in the city schools. In the Middlesex county schools the girls are so far ahead that the boys have no chance of catching up. Eighteen girls have been certified as champions, with but nine boys. Three schools which have not yet named champions would not bring the boys' record up to the girls, even if the champions were all boys. The boys expect to make up for their handicap of numbers by excellence of spelling.

Milltown Speller Good

One of the best spellers entered by Willard Lindstrom, son of F. O. Lindstrom of Milltown. Willard will represent Milltown in the spelling bee in the Junior High School auditorium May 12. He has already won three spelling bees, conducted as preliminary contests in the Milltown school, and has been spelling in some extra time on his spelling since being named representative of the school. In order to have the very best school speller take part in the county contest Principal Mensch of Milltown decided that more than one spelling bee was necessary as a trial of ability. Three were held, and Willard came out victorious. He will be one of the thirty-one spellers in the contest for Middlesex county honors May 12. The latest city champion to be named is a girl, Leona Newman, of the Bayard school. Although Leona is in grade six and a half she looks as if she had just graduated from kindergarten. She is the smallest entrant to appear on the scene, but one of the keenest. In addition to being spelling champion of the Bayard school, she is also a champion in arithmetic. She won the spelling honor by a perfect test paper, spelling words which older pupils missed. Her alternate is Harold Levy, of the same grade. Leona will take part in the city spelling bee May 12 at Junior High School.

—The day when the engineer used to stop the train for a cow on the track found an echo here recently when a herd of 500 deer delayed a train. Heavy snows had driven the deer from the higher ranges and they settled down on the tracks. The crew chased them off.
