

BANDITS GET PAY ENVELOPE OF MILLTOWN MAN

strangers knocked him down and one stamped upon his neck, while the other jumped on the ribs of the fallen man. After administering a thorough beating to him the men ran away, leaving their victim nearly unconscious along the roadway. He was found in this condition a little later by a neighbor, who happened along and was assisted to his home.

This morning Mr. Barony had recovered sufficiently to give a fairly accurate description of his assailants and neighbors said they knew one of the men to be a resident of Washington Heights, South River. This information was conveyed to Chairman Dorn of the Milltown police committee, who summoned Marshals Beecher and Lins and all three officials left at once for South River, where they enlisted the aid of Police Chief Eberwein of that place.

Early this afternoon a hunt for the South River man, believed to be one of Mr. Barony's assailants, was under way, but with what success is not known.

Needwork Guild to Have Annual Exhibit

The annual exhibit of the New Brunswick Branch of the Needwork Guild of America will be held in the Second Reformed Church on Wednesday afternoon, November 16, from 2:30 until 6 o'clock.

There is a special demand for children's clothing this year and it is hoped there will be a big response to this. Stockings, underwear of all descriptions, shoes, etc., may be sent in and will be gladly received as there are many calls.

Anyone may become a member of the guild by simply sending in two articles of new clothing or household-linen every year. These gifts are afterwards distributed to the various institutions and homes in the city.

The New Brunswick Guild has this year also adopted a French orphan as part of the work.

She will not gossip—no indeed! Such trivial talk she thinks is low. But she has a right way which leads her guests to tell all they know.

IMPRESSIVE MEET FOR ARMISTICE DAY AT RUTGERS COLLEGE

did address on what today meant for the future peace of the world. He said that today was the beginning of a new era, and that the nations of the world depend on the spirit of the colleges and churches to meet their many problems. He contended that these two institutions must speak and act in their own characteristic way in order to meet the test of America, in their endeavor to make future wars unnecessary. He said that the nations of the world had turned to peace-loving America to meet and determine the future of the world and to rescue civilization from war.

Dr. Austin Scott, former president of Rutgers, gave a beautiful address in which he showed that America was consecrated for the meeting of the Disarmament Conference because of its high ideals. He said that the hour in which this conference starts is the dividing hour between the spirit of the past and the spirit of the future. He spoke of the rich heritage of the past and the rich hopes of the future, as embodied in the Washington assembly. He said that the great men of the world were gathered to determine whether the world will be ruled by force or by righteousness. His keynote was "Is right ready to rule the world?"

A beautiful vocal solo was rendered by Prof. Ernest T. Dewald, who sang Kipling's "Lost We Forget." The service closed by the reading of the names of the twenty-two Rutgers men who were killed in service, and a two-minute silent prayer which terminated with taps on a bugle.

UNKNOWN MAN FOUND DEAD IN LONELY WOOD

He said he was confident that the man came from New York. He was a stranger in the neighborhood.

The body was found by Matthew Malawski of South Amboy, who had been hunting in the vicinity. He at once notified the police and Coroner Arthur K. Hillbet was summoned from Monmouth County Detective William Fitzpatrick of the prosecutor's staff also hurried to the scene and Detective David joined in the investigation later. Efforts are being made to identify the man.

An autopsy was performed this morning by County Physician J. L. Suydam.

GREAT CROWD SEES WAR MONUMENT UNVEILED IN PARK

notes of a bugle sounding "Taps" in memory of the men who sleep in France broke the profound silence that ensued.

The big assemblage then took up the words of the "Star Spangled Banner," and, at its conclusion, Rev. Quinn of St. Paul's Church pronounced the benediction. Rev. Anthony Laidens, pastor of the Highland Park Reformed Church, had pronounced the invocation.

G. Francis Eden, chairman of the War Memorial committee, acted as master of ceremonies at the meeting, which was a tremendous success in every respect.

The big plaza at the juncture of Hartman, Woodbridge and Sixth avenues was crowded to its utmost capacity by the crowd that gathered for the exercises, and hundreds of others lined the streets throughout the borough along the course of the parade.

Big Parade.

The parade, nearly a mile in length, was probably the biggest ever seen in Highland Park.

Members of Highland Park Post No. 88 of Highland Park and of Harold L. Derrre Post of Piscataway turned out in full strength, in uniform, and made a splendid showing. A detachment of soldiers from Camp Hartman added to the military character of the parade.

Major Case, commander of the Highland Park Borough Council headed the parade, followed by the members of the Board of Education and the Board of Health of the borough. A good sized detachment of Civil War veterans, many of them in the faded blue uniforms of half a century ago, followed in automobiles.

The Rutgers College band turned out in full strength, their red sweaters lending a splendid touch of color to the parade, and the Tall Cedars of Lebanon drill corps, in natty white uniforms, also gave a fine appearance. The Tall Cedars' band turned out in full strength and there was a good sized detachment from the New Brunswick Forest.

The Red Cross, the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, a big detachment of school children of the borough, a delegation from the Holy Name Society, the members of the Highland Park fire department and the fire apparatus all took part in the parade, making a fine spectacle.

Forming at the Lafayette School at Second avenue and Benner street, the parade marched up Benner street to Third avenue, to Hartman, to Second, to Lawrence, to Third, to Hartman, and thence to the monument at Sixth and Hartman.

Members of the American Legion will conclude the observance of the day with an invitation dance, to be held in the new New Brunswick armory, and indications are that it will be a big success.

The two minutes of prayer for the unknown dead, observed all over the nation, at noon exactly, were carefully observed by the assemblage.

IN MEMORIAM

The following poem is from the pen of William J. Fitzgerald and was written for the unveiling of the monument being erected in memory of the boys who fell in the great World War:

Tread softly, friend, and bow the head
In memory of our honored dead
Who far away in France lie sleeping,
Where paints on high lone vigil keeping.

Guard their resting place,
In answer to the reveille
When dawn is breaking.

Revere the flag and stack the gun,
Their freedom is forever won,
Their swords are sheathed, their rifle still,
In every trench, on every hill
The fight is finished.

To those who died on land and sea
We raise this shaft in memory,
To guard their souls in deepest love
Through eternity.

Though cold and silent it may be,

It bears the marks of liberty,
For which our heroes fought and died,
That we in world-wide peace
As God intended.

And though they lie so far away
We feel their presence here today
For who shall say they do not
Promote the realm of heaven
The love we bear them.

Their names though carved on this stone,
Within our hearts are stamped
And written in the book of life
By angels in their home above
For faithful service.

But with sorrow, joy is blended
That the cruel war is ended,
And the vain and vicious hate
Did not slaughter all our rank
In their mad fury.

And still the Stars and Stripes
Be the emblem of sweet liberty,
On every land and sea to wave
The banner of the strong and true
Who stand united.

And now with thankful hearts
We bow beneath the vaulted top
To pray that none our heroes
As we this monument unveil
