

HABEAS CORPUS IN "BLACK HAND" CASE

Judge Booraem Will Hear Mr. Cook's Application Monday for Release of Antonio Denatelli, Accused in the Dassori Case.

H. B. Cook this morning applied to Judge Booraem in the Common Pleas for a writ of habeas corpus to produce Antonio Denatelli for a hearing. Denatelli was arrested in connection with the alleged "Black Hand" attempt to extort money from Rev. Augustine Dassori, of Franklin Park. His home is in South River.

Denatelli's commitment alleges that he was a party to the attempted extortion and there was a feeling that he might become a State's witness. He has been in jail two weeks. He was committed by Recorder Watson.

Mr. Cook said the man had had no hearing and he asked that he be brought to court and cause be shown why he should not be released. Judge Booraem granted the writ and made it returnable next Monday.

Mr. Cook also asked for a habeas corpus in the case of Joseph Ocholsky, committed by Justice Engelheart of Sayreville, charged with non-support of child. Mr. Cook claimed that as six weeks have elapsed since the commitment, with no hearing being given the accused, Justice Engelheart had lost jurisdiction. This matter was also set for Monday, township counsel, Silzer, consenting.

WANT INDICTMENT QUASHED

Freeman Woodbridge made a motion to quash an indictment against George E. Bracher and Clifford H. Buckley, of Roosevelt, who are charged with obtaining goods under false pretences. Bracher is treasurer and Buckley, bookkeeper, of the Finnegun Lumber Co., of that place. The indictment was founded on the allegation of Robert G. Kay, of Philadelphia, that they obtained lumber from him on credit by misrepresenting the condition of the company.

Mr. Woodbridge declared the indictment to be deficient in that it did not specify the alleged misrepresentation. Judge Booraem reserved decision. Assistant Prosecutor Charles Engelheart appeared for the State and will be given an opportunity to reply to Mr. Woodbridge's statements.

"SHIRT TAIL TELEGRAPH"

VETS AT HIGH SCHOOL ILLUSTRATE SIGNAL SERVICE OF CIVIL WAR.

With a Signal Service Corps flag—white field with a red square in the center—Adjutant Jos. A. Sedam at the High School this afternoon, made a great hit with the boys and girls. He gave a comprehensive illustration of the way the "shirt tail telegraph" was used in the Civil War.

"There being no dry goods handy on the field of battle," said the adjutant, we were compelled to resort to makeshifts that were serious to us then, though humorous to you now. We needed flags to signal with when we started our signal corps and the only way we could get them was to use shirt tails, hence the rough and ready name.

"We first used balloons in our operations, but these were too slow. Too much time was lost in descending to the ground and despatching messages by couriers, so the signal service became an absolute necessity.

"If we saw the enemy constructing new breastworks or building a new fort, we signalled the artillery from our vantage points where to aim its shots.

"Our duties were the most dangerous because we were always on the firing line, and were the particular mark of the sharpshooters.

"We had to have good memories, too, because we were forced to memorize 125 abbreviations.

"Some of the abbreviations were the letter 'T' for the, those, that, them and there; 'M' for money, and 'M' for message. 'R' for road, 'E' for the end of a word, 'S' the end of a sentence, and 'W' the end of a message.

"It was the superior excellence of the Signal Corps service that gave the Union forces an advantage over the boys in grey that is not generally known. To-day there is not an army in the world that does not consider its signal corps an institution second to no other in strategic importance and military effectiveness. To-day not an army anywhere under intelligent control would think of engaging in even a skirmish without the assistance of the latter day scouting force, the Signal Corps. Fully equipped the Signal Corps of to-day is prepared for any emergency. It carries mediums of communication of every imaginable kind—flags, rockets, heliographs, the sun mirror, first used in ending the Indian uprising started by Geronimo twenty years ago, portable telephone and telegraph, radio, including the very latest wireless devices, and numerous other instruments.

"How few realize that this great change in manuevers on military bodies was brought by the wonderful work of our humble, but fearless Signal Corps in the Civil War, with its dare-devil telegraph operators stealing secrets from the enemy's lines and to be forgotten. Andrew Carnegie, by the way, who was then a telegraph operator, was connected with the telegraph end of the signal service at Washington.

"The veterans present were: Adjutant Jos. A. Sedam, Quartermaster Sergeant Geo. Wilson, Geo. W. Thompson, Chas. Banks.

Addresses were also made by Wm. C. Armstrong, Superintendent of Schools; Prof. Henry Miller, Principal of the High School, and the Rev. P. T. Pockman, D. D.

The musical exercises were conducted by Prof. George W. Wilnot, Supervisor of Music.

ARMORY A DEATH TRAP

Princeton Building, Where Boy Was Killed, Contains Defective Wires—Coroner Will Probe.

TRENTON, May 29.—Coroner Bower went to Princeton this morning to lead a jury to inquire into the death of Ernest Parker, the boy, who was killed by grasping an electric wire at the Princeton armory early yesterday morning.

The jury viewed the remains at Lawrence's morgue and adjourned until Tuesday afternoon, when an inquest will be held at Princeton. County Physician Scammell held an autopsy on the body and found all the organs in a healthy condition.

In discussing the case last night Coroner Bower said that he and County Physician Scammell had found the armory building a "death trap" because of the number of defective wires attached to it.

Parker was in the 17th year of his age and lived with his parents at Princeton Basin. On Wednesday Company L of Princeton held a smoker in the building and young Parker was engaged to clear up the place yesterday.

Parker was trying to get in the window to start cleaning the armory interior, which was the scene of a military banquet at which military prizes were awarded Wednesday night.

As he neared the window after scaling the wall his left hand came in contact with a heavy electric light wire that had no insulation on it. The wire runs into the building which is used for the production of the University Triangle Club shows, and the current is extremely heavy. Death was instantaneous. The weight of Parker's body finally tore loose his grip and he fell.

He was so badly burned that the fingers of the left hand dropped off.
